Practicing Conservation and Education Through Fly Fishing

The Lew Jewett Fly Fishers, Inc. is a Charter Club of the International Federation of Fly Fishers. We are an active Twin Cities club dedicated to conserving sport fish and their habitats, as well as educating ourselves and others in fly fishing. Our motto, “All Fish – All Waters,” describes our focus on the many cold water species, as well as warm water species, that live here in our area. Along with trout and Great Lakes salmon, we pursue panfish, smallmouth and largemouth bass, pike, musky and various other warm water species that can be readily taken with fly tackle. We have a club activity nearly each month of the year, including four dinner meetings, educational and casting clinics for the public, school and scouting programs, stream clean-up programs, fly tying classes and other club outings on the streams and lakes in the area. Please visit our web page (www.lewjewett.org) for more information.
